Introduction

Through the Publications Assistance Program, the federal government subsidizes the cost of mailing eligible periodical publications to subscribers and retailers within Canada. The Program also negotiates a reduced postal rate for inter-library loans, making library books more accessible to Canadian readers. Canada Post Corporation is an active partner in the Program.

For well over a hundred years, publishers and readers have benefitted from postal distribution assistance. During the fiscal year 1999-2000, the Program subsidized the delivery of over 230 million copies of more than 1,300 different periodical publications to people in all regions of Canada.

By lowering the cost of distributing Canadian publications -- and thereby the cost to readers -- the Publications Assistance Program contributes to the success of Canadian publishers in reaching Canadian audiences with local, regional, national and international news and an abundance of Canadian information of general and special interest.

Principal Objectives of the Publications Assistance Program

- To encourage the wide and affordable dissemination of Canadian publications to Canadian readers;
- to recognize the important role played by small community weekly newspapers in rural communities;
- to support the vitality of English and French minority communities and of Canada's cultural diversity through minority official language and ethnic weekly newspapers; and,
- to make library books available to those whose access to public libraries is made difficult by geography or physical limitation.

Eligibility Criteria

Publications eligible for the Program include:

- periodicals -- magazines and journals;
- weekly newspapers -- small community, minority official language, ethnic, national, regional; and
- commercial newsletters.

To be eligible, publications must meet certain requirements outlined in detail in the Applicant's Registration Guide in hard copy or on the departmental website: http://www.pch.gc.ca/culture/cult_ind/pap/english.htm.

Eligibility Criteria (cont'd.)

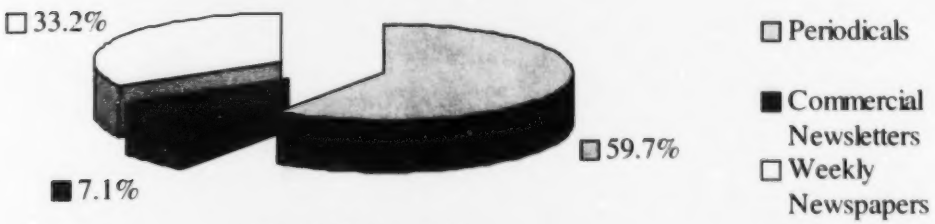
Key criteria include:

- Canadian ownership and control;
- paid circulation comprising at least 50 per cent of total circulation, through bona fide subscriptions and single copy sales through retailers/newsstands;
- a significant portion of original material produced by Canadians; and
- a maximum of 70 per cent advertising.

Meeting Program Objectives in 1999-2000

Program subsidies for 1999-2000 totalling $53.9 million were contributed by the Department of Canadian Heritage and Canada Post Corporation. These funds supported the distribution of over 230 million copies of Canadian publications. In addition, Canada Post absorbed an estimated $2.4 million through the Library Book Rate for over 600,000 inter-library mailings of library books.

Chart 1 - Subsidized Titles by Type of Publication



Total Titles: 1,348

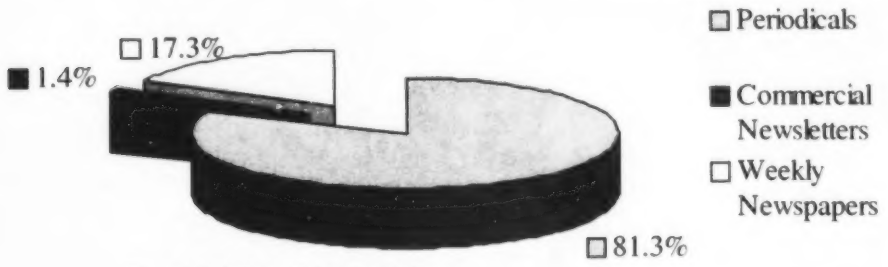
Source: PAP Database

The Publications Assistance Program provided support to 1,348 individual publications during 1999-2000. As Chart 1 illustrates, periodical publications were the single largest group of beneficiaries: just over 800 periodical titles accounted for 59.7 per cent of all publications receiving a subsidy. The periodical category is primarily made up of magazines -- general and special interest consumer, business and trade, farm and religious -- but also includes literary and scholarly journals. One third of the titles (448) receiving Program funds were weekly newspapers, mostly small community weeklies. Commercial newsletters made up the remaining seven per cent of Program beneficiaries.

Meeting Program Objectives in 1999-2000 (cont'd.)

Periodical publications received 81.3 per cent of all subsidy funds. (See Chart 2). This relatively high benefit to periodical publications is largely attributable to general interest consumer magazines which are quite numerous and, more importantly, tend to be published weekly or monthly for large national circulations. There were more than twice as many special interest consumer magazines supported as general interest, 273 and 131 respectively, but special interest magazines are published less frequently and circulated to a smaller readership. Scholarly journals, with even more targeted readership, made up 18.7 per cent of subsidized periodicals but received less than one per cent of the funds granted to these publications.

Chart no 2 - Subsidy Allocation by Type of Publication



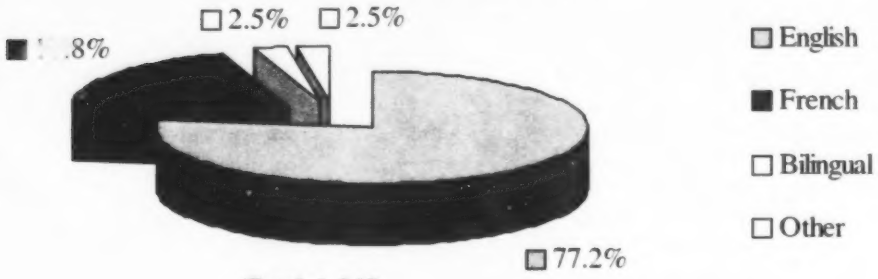
Total Subsidy: $53.9 million

Source: PAP Database

The various types of weekly newspapers shared 17 per cent of program grants. Almost half ($4.4 million) went to small community papers (i.e., published in towns of under 10,000) and the balance to other types of weeklies. The small community weeklies accounted for over 90 per cent of newspaper beneficiaries and for two thirds of subsidized copies. Their per-copy mailing costs, however, were much lower than for papers mailed nationally or regionally. Commercial newsletters, which generally have fewer pages and weigh less, received less than two per cent of program support in 1999-2000. (See Figure 2.)

Meeting Program Objectives in 1999-2000 (cont'd.)

Chart 3 - Subsidized Titles by Language



Total: 1,348

Source: PAP Database

English-language publications made up 77.2 per cent of Program beneficiaries (see Chart 3); just over half of the English titles were periodicals. On the other hand, among the 17.8 per cent of registered titles published in French, the vast majority -- over 90 per cent -- were periodicals. Almost all of the bilingual titles receiving Program support were periodicals. Publications in languages other than English or French were an even mix of periodicals and weekly newspapers.

Administrative Developments

1999-2000 was a year of administrative consolidation. The re-registration process for the more than 1800 publications transferred to Canadian Heritage from Canada Post was completed. Over the course of the year 142 titles which did not meet Program criteria were de-registered and 86 new applications were assessed.

Program officials revised and reformatted the program registration form and guide in anticipation of proposed changes to Section 19 of the Income Tax Act and related definitions for Canadian periodical and Canadian newspaper. PAP criteria still require no less than 75 per cent Canadian ownership and control.

Improved information collection and retrieval systems broadened the scope, accessibility, and timeliness of data. As a result, Program officials are equipped with more effective information resources and tools. Up-to-date mailing data from Canada Post allows for timely analysis and better forecasting of demands on Program finances.

Following the completion of the re-registration process, steps were taken to develop monitoring and reporting mechanisms as part of a maintenance system for the program. The maintenance system, to be implemented in 2000-2001, will:

- confirm that Program beneficiaries continue to meet all program requirements;
- help measure Program efficiency and effectiveness;
- provide timely data on industry trends; and,
- contribute to knowledge and understanding of the periodical publishing industry that will be valuable in developing future publishing policies and initiatives as well as determining refinements to current programs.

Summary of Program Results 1999-2000

The Publications Assistance Program continued to make a substantial contribution to Canadian publishing by supporting the distribution of a wide variety of titles among Canadian readers. In so doing, the Program advanced the broader objectives of the Department of Canadian Heritage in building industry infrastructure and in connecting Canadians among their diverse communities and across vast distances. By complementing other federal government initiatives in support of the Canadian periodical publishing industry, the Program strengthened the capacity for Canadian creators and producers to achieve excellence and compete in a challenging and changing economy.

Introduction

Par l'entremise du Programme d'aide aux publications, le gouvernement fédéral subventionne l'expédition par la poste des périodiques admissibles aux abonnés et aux détaillants du Canada. Les responsables du Programme négocient également un tarif postal réduit pour les prêts entre bibliothèques, ce qui permet aux lecteurs canadiens d'avoir accès plus facilement aux livres. La Société canadienne des postes participe activement au Programme.

Il y a plus de 100 ans que les éditeurs et lecteurs profitent d'une aide à la distribution par la poste. Au cours de l'année financière 1999-2000, le Programme a permis de subventionner la livraison de 230 millions d'exemplaires de plus de 1 300 périodiques à des résidents de toutes les régions du Canada.

En réduisant le coût de la distribution des publications canadiennes -- et, par voie de conséquence, les frais payés par les lecteurs -- le Programme d'aide aux publications permet aux éditeurs de transmettre aux canadiens des nouvelles locales, régionales, nationales et internationales ainsi qu'une abondance d'information canadienne d'intérêt général et spécialisé.

Principaux objectifs du Programme d'aide aux publications

- Encourager une dissémination de grande envergure et à prix abordable de publications canadiennes aux lecteurs canadiens;
- reconnaître le rôle important que jouent les petits journaux hebdomadaires dans les collectivités rurales;
- soutenir le dynamisme des communautés minoritaires de langue française ou anglaise et la diversité culturelle du Canada grâce aux journaux hebdomadaires de langue minoritaire officielle ou de journaux hebdomadaires ethniques;
- rendre les livres de bibliothèque accessibles à ceux et celles qui ont difficilement accès aux bibliothèques publiques en raison de contraintes géographiques ou d'une mobilité réduite.

Critères d'admissibilité

Les publications suivantes sont admissibles au Programme :

- périodiques -- magazines et revues;
- journaux hebdomadaires de petites communautés et de communautés de langue officielle en situation minoritaire, journaux hebdomadaires ethniques, nationaux et régionaux;
- bulletins commerciaux.

Les publications admissibles doivent satisfaire à certaines exigences (explications détaillées dans le Guide d'enregistrement du candidat offertes sur copie papier ou sur le site Web du Ministère : http://www.pch.gc.ca/culture/cult_ind/pap/francais.htm).

Critères d'admissibilité (suite) :

Voici les principaux critères :

- propriété et contrôle canadiens;
- le tirage payé inclut au moins 50 % du tirage total, grâce aux abonnements véritables et aux ventes au numéro en kiosques ou par les détaillants;
- une partie importante du contenu original est produite par des Canadiens et des Canadiennes;
- l'espace publicitaire ne dépasse pas un maximum de 70 % de l'espace total.

Atteinte des objectifs du Programme en 1999-2000

En 1999-2000, les subventions accordées dans le cadre du Programme ont atteint un total de 53,9 millions de dollars, l'argent provenant du ministère du Patrimoine canadien et de la Société canadienne des postes. Ces fonds ont permis de distribuer 230 millions d'exemplaires de publications canadiennes. Par ailleurs, Postes Canada a absorbé environ 2,4 millions de dollars grâce au tarif de livres de bibliothèque consenti à plus de 600 000 envois entre bibliothèques.

Graphique 1 - Titres subventionnés par type de publication

Total des titres : 1 348

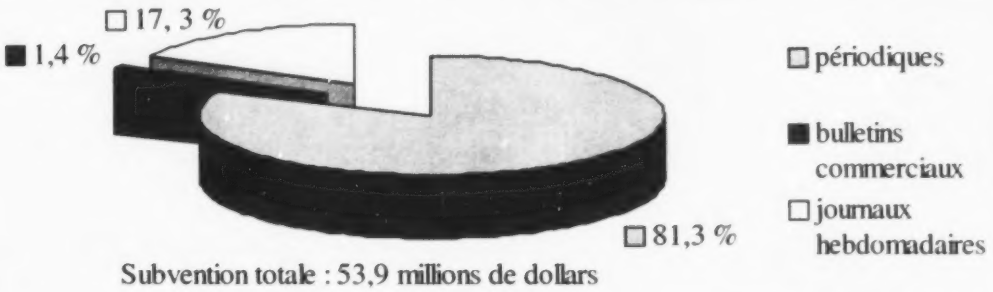
source : base de données du PAP

En 1999-2000, au total 1 348 publications individuelles ont profité du Programme. Comme l'illustre le graphique 1, les périodiques représentaient le groupe de bénéficiaires le plus important. En effet, plus de 800 périodiques (59,7 % de toutes les publications) ont reçu une subvention. Cette catégorie comprenait surtout des magazines -- intérêt général et spécialisé, d'affaires ou professionnels, agricoles et religieux -- ainsi que des revues littéraires et savantes. Le tiers (448) des titres ayant reçu des fonds regroupait des journaux hebdomadaires, surtout des journaux de petites communautés. Les bulletins commerciaux constituaient le dernier 7 % des bénéficiaires du Programme.

Atteinte des objectifs du Programme en 1999-2000 (suite)

Les périodiques ont reçu 81,3 % de toutes les subventions (voir le graphique 2). Le montant relativement important qui leur a été accordé est attribuable, en grande partie, au nombre important de revues d'intérêt général qui sont, dans l'ensemble, des publications hebdomadaires ou mensuelles. Ces publications à grand volume sont distribuées à l'échelle régionale et nationale. En fait, les revues d'intérêt spécialisé sont deux fois plus nombreuses que celles d'intérêt général, 273 et 131 respectivement, mais leur parution est moins fréquente et de plus, elles s'adressent à un nombre de lecteurs plus restreint. Les publications savantes, même avec un lectorat encore mieux ciblé, représentent 18,7 % des périodiques subventionnés. Les sommes reçues par ces publications représentent moins de 1% des sommes accordées aux périodiques.

Graphique 2 - Attribution des subventions par type de publication



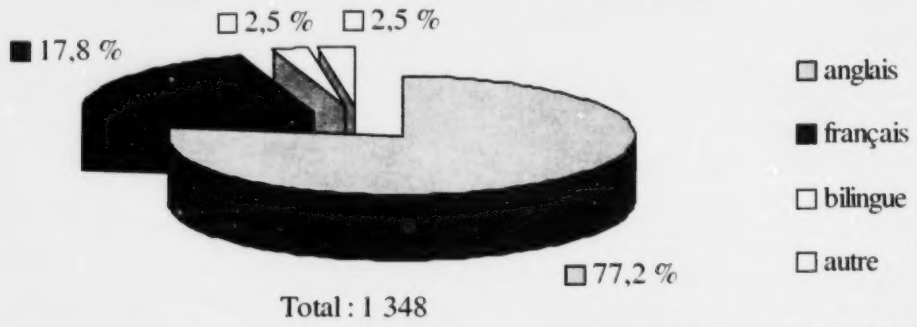
Subvention totale : 53,9 millions de dollars

source : base de données du PAP

Des sommes versées par le Programme, 17 % sont allées aux différents types de journaux hebdomadaires. Près de la moitié ($4,4 millions) était consacrée aux petits hebdomadaires locaux (c.-à-d. publiés dans les collectivités comptant moins de 10 000 habitants); les autres hebdos se sont partagé le reste. Plus de 90 % des journaux bénéficiaires appartenaient à la catégorie des petits hebdos locaux. Cette catégorie a publié les deux-tiers des exemplaires subventionnés. Cependant, leur coût unitaire d 'expédition a été inférieur à celui des hebdos nationaux ou régionaux. Les bulletins commerciaux, qui sont en général moins volumineux et plus légers, ont reçu moins de 2 % de l'aide accordée par le Programme au cours de 1999-2000 (voir le graphique 2).

Atteinte des objectifs du Programme en 1999-2000 (suite)

Graphique 3 - Titres subventionnés selon la langue



Total : 1 348

source : base de données du PAP

D'une part, les publications de langue anglaise représentent 77,2 % des bénéficiaires du Programme et un peu plus de la moitié de ces titres sont des périodiques (voir le graphique 3). D'autre part, les titres publiés en français et représentant 17.8% des bénéficiaires du programme sont principalement des périodiques (plus de 90 %). Les périodiques représentent également la quasi-totalité des titres bilingues qui reçoivent l'appui du Programme. On retrouve presque en nombre égal les périodiques et les journaux publiés dans les langues autres que l'anglais et le français.

Élaboration des procédures administratives

L'année 1999-2000 a été une période d'unification administrative. Le processus de réenregistrement a pris fin et s'est soldé par le transfert de plus de 1800 publications de Postes Canada à Patrimoine canadien. Au cours de l'année, 142 titres ont été retirés parce qu'ils ne répondaient pas à toutes les exigences du Programme et 86 nouvelles demandes ont été évaluées.

Les responsables du Programme ont révisé et restructuré le formulaire d'inscription et le guide du Programme en fonction des changements proposés à l'article 19 de la Loi de l'impôt sur le revenu touchant à la propriété, au contrôle et aux définitions connexes des périodiques et des journaux canadiens. Les critères du PAP relatifs à la propriété et au contrôle canadiens d'au moins 75 % sont maintenus.

Élaboration des procédures administratives (suite)

L'amélioration des systèmes d'information a permis d'élargir la portée, l'accessibilité et l'obtention de données à jour. En conséquence, les responsables du Programme disposent de ressources et d'outils plus efficaces. Des données à jour sur les envois de Postes Canada permettent d'effectuer une analyse en temps opportun et de mieux prévoir les demandes de financement dans le cadre du Programme.

Après avoir établi le processus de réenregistrement, des étapes ont été suivies pour concevoir des mécanismes de surveillance et d'établissement de rapports qui feront partie du système de maintenance du Programme. Celui-ci sera mis en oeuvre en 2000-2001 pour :

- confirmer que les bénéficiaires continuent de satisfaire à toutes les exigences du Programme;
- aider à mesurer l'efficacité et le rendement du Programme;
- fournir de l'information en temps opportun sur les tendances dans l'industrie;
- contribuer à une meilleure connaissance de l'industrie de l'édition de périodiques qui sera très utile pour élaborer des initiatives et des politiques sur l'édition et pour apporter des améliorations au programme en cours.

Sommaire des résultats du Programme : 1999-2000

Le Programme d'aide aux publications contribue encore de façon substantielle à l'édition canadienne en appuyant la distribution d'une grande variété de titres aux lecteurs canadiens. De ce fait, le Programme contribue à l'atteinte des grands objectifs du ministère du Patrimoine canadien qui visent à bâtir une infrastructure industrielle et à créer des liens entre les Canadiens et les Canadiennes vivant dans une multitude de communautés réparties à travers le pays. En tant que complément des autres initiatives du gouvernement fédéral à l'appui de l'industrie de l'édition des périodiques canadiens, le Programme rend les créateurs et les producteurs canadiens plus aptes à atteindre l'excellence et à faire face à la concurrence dans une économie en évolution.
